It includes living things, planets, stars, galaxies, dust clouds, light, and even time. Before the birth of the Universe, time, space and matter did not exist. The Universe contains billions of galaxies, each containing millions or billions of stars. The space between the stars and galaxies is largely empty. The Universe is incredibly huge. It will take a modern jet fighter more than a million years to reach the nearest star to the sun. Travelling at the speed of light; it would take 100.000 years to cross our Milky Way galaxy alone. No one knows the exact size of the Universe, because we cannot see the edge- if there is one. All we do know the exact size the visible Universe is at least 93 billion light years across. The Universe has not always been the same size. Since then, the Universe has been getting bigger at very high speed. So the area of space we now see is billions of times bigger than it was when the Universe was very young. The galaxies are also moving further apart as the between them expands. 31.
